Project Name:

Diabetic Education Awareness Day

Description

"Diabetic Education Awareness Day Community Program" was held on April 18, 2007 at the Landsbaum Center for Health Education in Terre Haute, Indiana. This program was free and open to the entire community. There were 2 local physicians who addressed living with diabetes and select arthritic conditions. There was also an ISU professor who addressed nutrition in relation to diabetes. There were 17 vendors and over 100 attendees.

How do you see community engagement activities fitting in with your department in the future?

Future programs are being planned on "Living with Congestive Heart Failure" with student poster presentations. In the spring a community program targeting pregnant women or women of child-bearing age is being planned with student participation.

What do you feel has been the impact of the project?

Better community awareness of living with diabetes.
